This month's featured songwriters:

Jamie Mitchell— Denver, CO

Over the last few years, guitarist Jamie Mitchell has been establishing himself as one of Denver's great players. Since moving to Denver, Jamie has been involved in many musical projects while honing his own sound. His new record, Love Songs of the Profane, combines influences from bands such as Wilco, Lucinda Williams, and Sonic Youth with rootsy songwriting and lessons learned from love. The songs are honest and unfiltered, combining heartbreak and hope.

Ginger Roots— Lyons, CO

The Ginger Roots are Emilyn Inglis, Kristina Murray, and Nancy Thorwardson. These ladies sing sweet and spicy three-part harmonies on songs ranging in style from bluegrass to country, swing to folk, blues and originals to boot! They play a variety of instruments including guitar, mandolin, dulcimer, ukulele, and percussion, and the trio is often supported by fabulous lead instrumentalists, adding spice to the combo.
